If law enforcement interests you, then look no further than the first state law enforcement agency — the Arkansas Highway Police.

Created during the 1929 General Assembly, 20 members became the first law enforcement officers in Arkansas to be officially commissioned by state law when the Arkansas Road Patrol was assigned to the Arkansas Department of Transportation (ArDOT). Their badges were inscribed with “Arkansas State Highway Police.”

Through the years the unit has transferred between various state agencies, but it has always maintained its identity, purpose and dedication to serving the people of Arkansas. Since 1963, it has been part of the ArDOT family. In 1979, the unit became known as the Arkansas Highway Police. Since 1989, the powers and duties of the Transportation Safety Agency have been enforced by the Arkansas Highway Police. All officers carry a commission as an Agent of the Commissioner of Revenues.

Today, the Arkansas Highway Police is a nationally recognized leader in the fields of drug interdiction, motor carrier safety and hazardous materials enforcement, and training. Officers serve as instructors for the University of Arkansas Criminal Justice Institute, National Training Center, and the Drug Interdiction Assistance Program.
